FOREWORD

When first received, the papers of the Carcross Community Education Centre consisted of approximately 12.7 meters of records. The bulk of the fonds dates from 1970-1979 although some earlier Choooutla School records, pre-dating 1970, are also included with the fonds.

The fonds, in its entirety, was assigned the accession number 79/63, and then separated according to the media it represented. Five series were designated for the fonds, as listed below:

- SERIES 1: PAPERS
- SERIES 2: PHOTOGRAPHS
- SERIES 3: MAPS & PLANS AND POSTERS
- SERIES 4: AUDIO-VISUAL: SOUND RECORDINGS & FILM
- SERIES 5: IMPRINT

Within Series 1, the papers were received in untitled folders, the majority of which contained a jumble of records, many handwritten either on scraps of paper or on the reverse of previously photocopied reports. Initially, these papers were retained in their original order and placed in untitled file folders numbered 1-662.

A certain broad subject arrangement and sequence could, however, be detected and the following sub-series were designated:

- A. GENERAL HISTORY & PHILOSOPHY
- B. MANAGEMENT STRUCTURE
- C. APPLICATION COMMITTEE & APPLICATIONS
- D. EDUCATION
- E. AGRICULTURE
- F. PUBLIC RELATIONS & FUNDRAISING

Within these categories, groups of folders overlapped. Agriculture papers were mixed with those of engineering; public relations folders were scattered in small groups throughout. Many files gave the impression of having been, at one time, the personal collection of an individual Community member, and having then had material added by other people at later dates. A typical folder of this kind might contain minutes, reports, etc. of several committees interfiled with one another, and a number of miscellaneous papers, with overall dates such as 1971-1979. Other files gave the impression of having come from different offices within the complex, since duplicates of the same reports were present in so many files. There was evidence of an internal numbering system having existed at some point, but this was obscured by the addition of miscellaneous papers at later dates. Discussions with a previous Community member suggested that little had ever been done to set up or maintain an overall filing system at the Community.

The 662 files were then physically rearranged to reflect the broad subject arrangement (sub-series) determined by the archivist (as outlined in A-G above). The subject content of the files were determined, like files were amalgamated, duplicate papers and imprint items were weeded out, and a final file arrangement (of 340 files) decided upon. Title headings were assigned the files by the archivist and within individual files; the papers were ordered chronologically but have been cross referenced to the new file numbers and are available on a table found at the end of the Finding Aid.

The photographs (Series 2 of the fonds), consisting of more than 353 slides and prints, were organized according to any original groupings that could be determined. Included is a file of slides arranged chronologically between 1974 and 1978, a set of prints arranged by subject, and a file of 35 mm negatives.

Three maps and five posters, the posters produced by and about the Carcross Community Centre, are described individually in Series 3 of the fonds.

Series 4 consists of audio-visual material including sound recordings and film. Seven cassettes and three reel-to-reel tapes were retained with the fonds. Included among these are student applications made on tape, two public relations presentations, and sound track and music background for a CBC film produced about the Carcross Community. The film contained with the fonds was filmed by the CBC for the program "This Land". It consists of footage shot at the Centre and in Carcross, and involves a series of interviews with Bishop Frame and various members of the Carcross Community.

Titles of northern publications were removed to the Yukon Archives Imprint collection, and a listing placed in the Imprint section (Series 5) of the Finding Aid. Imprint material fell primarily into the following three categories: education, agriculture and engineering.

A large quantity of imprint material, pamphlets, booklets, school calendars, handbooks, manuals, brochures, magazines and journal articles, were withdrawn from the fonds due to their very general nature, and their subject matter noted. Other material removed from the fonds included duplicate papers within Series 1, two commercial film strips about Africa, and four sound recordings consisting of programs taped from the radio, Joan Baez music, and a very short student application.

Any restricted material within the fonds has been so noted in the Finding Aid, and red dots attached to the respective folders. The prime reason for restricting material is due to the personal nature of information found within the files. In the case of the restricted folders, individuals are named and personal information about them revealed. For this reason, all restricted files will be closed for 100 years (March 2088), although provision will be made to allow individuals to see restricted information concerning themselves. Where possible, restricted material was separated from a folder and given a designated "R" file number, thus allowing open access to most of the original file.

Finally, the Diocesan Office at the Anglican Church in Whitehorse maintains some Carcross Community School records concerning graduation and school attendance.

Funding for the organization of these records and the compilation of the Finding Aid was provided by the Canadian Council of Archives and the Yukon Archives under the C.C.A.'s Arrangement and Description Backlog Reduction Cost Shared Cooperative Program.

Finding Aid prepared by Jenny Nesbitt-Dufort, March 1988.

HISTORY

Carcross Community Education Centre, 1972-1979

Carcross Community Education Centre began in 1972 as an experiment in alternate education and community living, sponsored by the Anglican Diocese of Yukon. Bishop John Frame proposed to use the abandoned premise of the old Chootla Indian Residential School near Carcross (50 miles south of Whitehorse) to establish a Community to meet the needs of young people who had become alienated by the impersonality of the prevailing school system and by the stresses of modern life.

Students, both native and non-native, from the Yukon and elsewhere in Canada, together with a small proportion of students referred by government agencies, were offered an opportunity to continue High School education while becoming part of a close-knit community. All work was to be performed by the staff (called Parent Members) and the students themselves. The setting was ideal- 1600 acres of wilderness valley, a lake, a stream and a complex of six assorted buildings, one of which was the huge old white Residential School.

Here education was interpreted, in the broadest sense, to mean that all aspects of living were learning- from academic courses to practical experience in such activities as cooking for 50 people, cleaning a boiler, driving a tractor, caring for farm animals, hunting, logging, ski-touring and outdoor survival (to mention only a few). Academic courses varied throughout the Community's seven year history, from Grades 11-12 (following British Columbia Department of Education curricula), to a non-credit "Fundamentals" course. Courses in subjects not available at the Community could be taken by correspondence.

Parent Members were mainly people in their twenties whose skills ranged from mechanics to teachers. While the "Parents" were expected to live by religious principles embodied in a "Rule of Life", no such commitment was required of the student or worker members. Students drew up and signed an education "contract" with the Parent Member who was responsible for their individual guidance.

Funding for the start-up of the Community came from fundraising (which discontinued for a while in 1974), student fees, and from the various commercial activities in which Community members engaged, including: bread sales, crafts, logging, canoe building, furniture making and babysitting. Donations were again sought in 1977 for repairs to the complex, and a final Public Relations and Fundraising Campaign was mounted in February 1979 in hopes of attracting new members, and sufficient funds to continue operations.

Management of the Community was carried out by a series of committees covering every area of Community life. These, in turn, reported to a Management Committee composed of Parent and Student Members, which served as a liaison with the Diocese. Students were expected to join committees and to take part in decision-making as part of the educational process. The three main rules within the Community were "no sex, no alcohol, no drugs".

Several different plans were proposed from time to time to deal with the problems caused by the aging building complex and physical plant, including: a plan to build and move into cabins (1976), a plan to set up a Community elsewhere (1976), and finally in 1977, the actual shut-down of the top 3 floors of the main building with the Community Members moving into the adjacent houses.

In 1978, Parent Members spent a year without students, in an attempt to carry out repairs to the complex, and to find time to re-create a sense of Community. Falling numbers of Parent and Student Member applications for the coming year, and the continuing deterioration of the buildings and physical plant, led to the final closing of the Community in June 1979.

FONDS DESCRIPTION

CARCROSS COMMUNITY EDUCATION CENTRE FONDS. — 1903-1939, 1962-1979

Physical Description:

0.9 m of textual records and other materials.

Administrative History:

Dates of Founding/Dissolution: Established in 1972; dissolved in 1979.

Mandate: This centre was an experiment in alternate education and community living. It was established to meet the needs of young people, both native and non-native, from the Yukon and elsewhere in Canada, who had been alienated by the impersonal nature of the school system. The philosophy of education lived at the Centre was one in which learning was experienced in all aspects of living, from academic courses, and practical experience such as cooking for 50 people, cleaning a boiler, caring for farm animals, hunting, outdoor survival, etc.

Administrative Relationships: The centre was sponsored by the Anglican Diocese of Yukon, and received student referrals from government agencies.

Administrative Structure: All work was performed by the staff (called Parent Members) and the students. Parent Members were mainly people in their twenties whose skills ranged from mechanics to teachers, and were expected to live by religious principles embodied in a "Rule of Life". They agreed to live by it through a Commitment Service. This commitment was not required of students or Worker Members. Students drew up and signed an education "contract" with the Parent Member who was responsible for their individual guidance. The three main rules within the Community were "no sex, no alcohol, no drugs". Funding came from fundraising, student fees, and the centre's commercial activities, including bread sales, crafts, logging, canoe building, furniture making and babysitting. Management of the Community was carried out by a series of committees covering every area of Community life, including a Transportation Committee, Health and Safety Committee, Kitchen Committee, Outreach Committee, Futures Committee, Commercial Ventures, Public Relations, Student Life Committee. The committees reported to a Management Committee composed of Parent and Student members, and served as a liaison with the Diocese.

Other Information: The centre used the abandoned premises of the old Chooutla Indian Residential School, and the surrounding 1600 acres of wilderness valley. The upkeep of the buildings was a problem for the Community. In 1978, Parent Members spent a year without students, in an attempt to carry out repairs to the complex, and to find time to re-create a sense of community. Falling numbers of Parent and Student Member applications for the coming year, and the continuing deterioration of the buildings and physical plant, led to the final closing of the Community in June 1979.

Scope and Content:

The fonds consists of the records of the Carcross Community Education Centre, from its beginnings in 1972, to its closing in 1979. There are also a few records from the Chooutla Indian Residential School, which were part of histories written by students. Bishop John Frame's 1971 proposal for using the Chooutla complex is also part of the fonds. The records are from all aspects of the operation of the Community, including financial records, committee reports, and meeting minutes, student questionnaires, records from the various commercial ventures, including the bakery, community store, canoe building, crafts, woodshop, campground, fish farming, logging, and outreach programmes. The fonds also includes records arising from the physical upkeep of the complex. The fonds consists of the following series: General History and Philosophy; Management Structure; Applications Committee; Education; Engineering; Agriculture; Public Relations; Photographs; Maps & Plans and Posters; and Sound Recordings and Film.

Source of Supplied Title Note:

Title based on provenance of the fonds.

Physical Description Note:

Includes: 0.9 m of textual records, ca. 440 slides and photographs, 3 plans, 7 audio tape cassettes, 3 audio reels, 1 film, 5 posters, and imprint material.

Arrangement:

The fonds was separated into media types, then the textual records were arranged into broad functional/subject categories. The textual records were received in untitled folders, and were retained in their original order until rearrangement was undertaken.

Restrictions:

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

SERIES 1: PAPERS

DATES: 1916-1918, 1967-1979
 EXTENT: 3.6 Meters

A. GENERAL HISTORY & PHILOSOPHY Files 1-10

The first section contains general historical material such as information on the earlier Chooutla Residential School (which was to become the Carcross Community Education Centre), together with records which provide some insight into the guiding principles behind the establishment of the Community, as set out by Bishop Frame in his original proposal.

Here too, may be found a year-by-year series of the “Rule of Life” to which Parent Members committed themselves anew each February, together with copies of the Commitment Services themselves.

Many of these folders were located at the beginning of the fonds as it was originally received. To them has been added other material which may serve to give an impression of the Community as a whole, such as inventories, Community member lists, and a guest book.

B. MANAGEMENT STRUCTURE      Files 11-96

Management within the Community was carried out by a system of up to 12 committees, as there was no formal leader until 1978/79. Before that period, informal leadership arose spontaneously from within the Parent Member body.

The Community was directly responsible, through Bishop Frame, to the Diocese of Yukon. A Standing Committee, composed of members of the Diocese together with the Community Management Committee met once a month. In addition, each major area of Community life was represented by its own committee.

This section of the fonds contains records of the following: Parent Members, Community Life, Student Life, Futures, Financial, Commercial Ventures, Kitchen, Health, Household and Transportation Committees. Some committee records in the areas of Applications, Education, Engineering, Agriculture and Public Relations may also be found here, but because these areas contain larger quantities of material, they have been given separate sections of their own.

Records in this section are in the form of reports, minutes, briefs, educational schedules and timetables, correspondence and other related materials.

C. APPLICATIONS COMMITTEE AND APPLICATIONS Files 97-156

These 4 boxes (60 folders) deal with applications for membership in the Community. Folders 97-103 contain examples of application forms and informational material sent to prospective applicants, together with correspondence from interested students and their parents. Folder 103 contains Application Committee notebooks. The remaining 53 folders in this section contain applications from prospective leaders, parent and student members, and have been designated “Restricted- Confidential”.

Applications

A typical example of an application for membership of Carcross Community Education Centre consists of an essay-style answer, by the applicant, to the questions on the application form. Also included are personal references by neighbours, friends, family, teachers, doctors, probation officers, school transcripts, drawings etc. Occasionally a photograph of the applicant is enclosed. There are two examples of student applications made verbally, on sound tape cassette (see Sound Recordings section).

D. EDUCATION Files 157-249

The term "Education" at the Community was interpreted, in the widest possible sense, to cover all areas of living and learning. This particular section of the fonds, however, concerns mainly records of the academic courses (which were modeled on the British Columbia Department of Education curriculum), and includes materials such as: Education Committee reports, papers concerning philosophy, program development and rehabilitation, textbook educational supplies and the library. Files 182-223 contain curriculum development guides and course outlines.

Also in this section may be found student marks, examples of student work in various subjects, and educational correspondence. These records give an insight into the development of the Educational Program, especially the early efforts to achieve accreditation.

A large number of booklets, pamphlets, copies of articles and calendars from other educational institutions were present amongst these records as originally received. These materials were withdrawn, but the titles of those of northern interest were listed, while the subject matter of the remainder was noted. Further details may be found in the Imprint section of the fonds.

E. ENGINEERING Files 250-278

Included in this section are records for the Physical Plant, Building Repair and Maintenance and Summer Work Projects.

The Chief Engineer of the Community seems to have been responsible for supervising and carrying out operations, repair and maintenance in the areas of Physical Plant, Buildings, Automotive and Shop, and the heavy appliances in the institutional-sized kitchen, bakery and laundry. Almost everything in the way of buildings and equipment at the complex dated back to the 1950s, and required endless patching and repairing. Nothing caused the Community more concern than the boiler system, which required a 24 hour shift each day, and the supervision of a Steam Engineer. The search for a suitably qualified staff member was a continual problem for the Community throughout the years.

Engineering records consist of:

1. Checklists, operating instructions, part and tool lists.
2. Handbooks, manuals.
3. Correspondence, mostly about spare machine parts and boiler problems.

Building repair and maintenance papers provide details of the boilers, furnaces and electrical systems of the houses, Government Inspectors' and consultants' reports, alterations to the main building, lists of furnishings and appliances. The period of time covered is approximately 1972-1977.

Summer work projects concern government sponsored organization such as Katimavik, Operations for Youth and Operation Beaver, and the recruitment of temporary "Worker Members". Records in this area are mainly in the form of program brochures, summer work proposals, coordinators' notebooks, project leaders' reports, list of participants etc. Work was done in the area of building repair, maintenance and alteration, gardening and agriculture. Records cover the period 1972-1978.

F. AGRICULTURE Files 279-292

Agriculture was a teaching program, a means of feeding the Community, and a way of making money. Records available are for the period 1974-1978, and range from Agricultural Committee minutes, reports, budgets and inventories, to details of breeding, milk and egg yields, feed costs and projected plans for stock such as pigs, sheep, goats, chickens, rabbits and bees.

There is a small amount of correspondence concerning soil testing, seed and supply orders, advice on farming procedures etc. Folder 280 contains a short history of farming in the area from 1907-1977, and a Five Year Plan for the Community farm.

Many agricultural pamphlets, booklets, catalogues and copies of magazine and journal articles on agriculture were originally inter-filed with the papers in this section. Those of northern interest were withdrawn to Series 5. For a listing of available titles and a note of the subject matter of these materials, see the Imprint section of this Finding Aid.

G. PUBLIC RELATIONS AND FUNDRAISING Files 293-340

This part of the fonds represents the most orderly of the Community's records, since most of the folders were already in chronological order when originally received (although the papers within the folders are not necessarily in order). Copies of many of these papers are duplicated elsewhere in the fonds, but occurring here together as they do, their subject matter presents a comprehensive overview of the Community's educational/community philosophy, curricula, staff lists and profiles, together with details of community activities in the larger Yukon community.

Public Relations records consist of that Committee's reports, notes, and minutes, 1973-76 and 1978-79, copies of brochures, information booklets, school calendars, membership application forms, newsletters, updates and press releases for the period 1971-1979. There are several information letters by Bishop Frame. Scripts for slideshows and media interviews given by various Community members may be found here, also original manuscripts of Community publications and itineraries for Public Relations tours. Folders 309-316 contain newspaper and magazine clippings about Community affairs, while folders 317-319 contain memorabilia such as wedding services, programs of plays etc.

Fundraising materials cover the periods 1973-1977, and the final campaign of 1979. These records consist mainly of lists and files of donors, and examples of Public Relations/Fundraising packages.

Includes scenes of Carcross Community Education Centre, with students engaging in discussion and other activities. Also shown are various scenes of Carcross including the Indian graveyard and Matthew Watson’s Store. Film length: 900’, about 30 minutes playing time.

A separate sound track (SR 97 (9)) accompanies the programme (The sound track may be timed to synchronize with the finished rather than the slash print).

SERIES 5: IMPRINT

DATES: 1913-1917, 1954-1979

EXTENT: 0.9 Metres

IMPRINT:

As mentioned earlier, a very significant portion of the material received with the Carcross Community Education Centre records consisted of publications. This imprint material was separated from the files, and incorporated as Series 5 of the fonds.

The items listed in Series 5 consist of the pamphlets, books, periodicals, and newspapers that were retained in the fonds because of their northern content. These items have been listed by title and are available to the researcher through the card catalogue. Not consistently included with the following list are the titles of imprint items received with the Carcross records that duplicate titles already held by the Archives. The majority of these duplicates were simply checked against the existing holdings and disposed of.

Finally, a very large portion of the Carcross Community Education Centre imprint was of a general nature, and not related to specific Yukon topics. While these items were not retained with the fonds, it is interesting to note that they represented a voluminous and broad collecting scope. Some of these items served as general reference tools, course support material, library holdings, etc. and in their entirety presented a picture of the variety of interests represented at the Centre. The topics of the imprint items not retained with the fonds included some of the following: various Provincial school curriculum guides; teaching manuals; correspondence course material; various book and film catalogues; directories; newspaper articles; and published articles on topics of teaching methodology, environmental education; alternative education, and adult life skills courses. There was a great deal of imprint material related to agriculture and small animal husbandry including gardening and farming periodicals; books on the care of various birds and animals; agriculture fact sheets; information on forest management; and meteorological reports. Also contained within the imprint were various engineering pamphlets and booklets; advertising pamphlets; and energy information articles. Finally, there was also a series of imprint items related to personal development and care such as pamphlets about drug abuse, birth control, marriages, recreation, personal fitness, religious development, and employment opportunities.

Samples of some of the above imprint topics have been retained with Series 1 of the fonds, and the following list represents imprint items incorporated into the Archives' imprint collection.
